

It should be up to us, the paying customers, what we hear. It shouldn't be up to some money-hungry association to tell us we can't listen to something just because they don't want to compete. They'd rather shut down a very useful and successful service rather than make their own services better. It's not XM's fault that they're better than other broadcasters. Others should learn from XM, not try to shut them down. We have the RIGHT to hear what we want. If we don't like what we're hearing, we can change the channel. The "NAB" does not have the right to make that decision for us. They need to stop wasting everyone's time and concentrate on making themselves better, not bringing competition back down to their level.
